The Mountain

When looking at a mountain we are always taken back. It is moving and breath-taking. We look at its size and are awe stricken. To climb the mountain is always a prestige.

The Torah was given on a mountain. Everything in Torah is precise and particular. Every detail has intent and purpose. The Torah is telling us that we need to be a mountain. When we stand with pride and integrity, when we are firmly based in what is important to us, the world around us stands with respect.

The greatness of the mountain is that it can not be moved. It is placed, set and reaches high. When the rest of world is searching for morals and ethics and the leaders are being caught failing in showing strength and integrity, the Torah teaches us to be strong in our beliefs and respect will come.

All the people that I have met that stood strong in a challenge of principle and were willing to lose all and not give away what was true to them, gained more honor and prestige than they had before.

People like someone they can push around, but they respect, honor and admire someone of principles and values. Let's be mountains, be giants, and bring goodness into this broken and shattered world.

Warm regards,

Rabbi Shalom White
 Chabad Lubavitch WA
